Quality In Everything We Do

Farming

We are a root to mouth company and our commitment to provide quality ingredients begins right from the farms that we choose to grow the medicinal plants that find their way into your finished formulations. Harvesting the produce at the right time and season is critical and we are there when it matters most.

Sourcing

There are many places where one can trade with raw materials, but we only source our dried herbs and plants that are not grown in our farms from the best farmers around. We encourage good agricultural practices and wild farming to obtain quality pesticide free raw materials that are extracted and brought to you with maximum shelf life.

Manufacturing

The manufacturing facilities we choose are state of the art and have the latest equipments like extractors, spray dryers, blenders, granulators etc. Our in-depth knowledge of extraction technologies assures our customers receive optimal product quality with no compromises on critical parameters.

Standardization

Quality is a not a subjective topic of discussion to us, rather it is a series of well defined parameters that are meticulously analyzed using the latest technology available to the industry. We are keen to comply with your definition of quality when it comes to standardization of assay, heavy metals, micros, particle size etc.

Documentation

Our products are a pedigree apart and the silver lining of it all is the supporting documentation we are able to provide on each lot of material. Our products' specification sheets, certificates of analysis, ingredient disclosures and certifications will lend credibility to the formulations you choose to put them into.

Shipping

Our shipping and logistics are streamlined to move seamlessly across international borders. There is no doubt that you will receive a better price and have greater control over the quality and delivery of the product when you are getting it from the first source of manufacturing.
